THE NEWS FROM ABROAD.

It Will . . . . . Stand Finding Out.

How will it wear, and what's the price, are things to keep in your thoughts in buying Clothing, and getting an honest money's worth.

We face the questions squarely with our own good make of clothing that will give long service, looks well, and sells for as little as good materials and work can be had for, and a good deal lower than ordinary prices for like quality.

Our long experience as manufacturers gives us the inside track; and the better you get acquainted with our clothing the better you'll like it, and our liberal methods.

There's a deal of difference between rightly clothing that looks fairer than it does, and our reliable and stylish goods.

It leaves them qualities oh so out of sight when it comes to what it's worth to you in wear.

Fix your confidence to ours; it will hold.

Little Lord Fauntleroy,

BY

Frances Hodgson Burnett.

No book for children has appeared for years which has attracted immediately and to the same degree the admiration and praise of readers, young and old. One of the chiefly interesting things about the story is that the little American boy romps among his friends almost as many grown people as children, and who will be certain to welcome the story most heartily in this handsome book form.
